

Conner - World Book Day Article
Supported to write independently.

World Book Day is a day where everyone goes to a book sale and can dress up as their favourite characters, from fictional or non-fictional books. It will be on the 7th March this year. It is the day where people can buy all types of books.

Excitement will be around in my local college.

My friend [named Emma respectfully] has got a boy and 2 girls. I have told her about a book series by an author named Francesca Simon and illustrated by Tony Ross. Together they made all the Horrid Henry books. There are 24 books in total. I have nicknamed her children after the characters, Henry Margeret, and Susan.

Reading is one of favourite things in my entire life and I love every other school subject that you can imagine. I have started to read books from this shop called 'The Works'.

World Book Day is for everybody, even people in my own college class [CO.33]. It is to encourage them to read books and go to the library. Sometimes there are book sales in schools in The UK and everywhere else in the world. This year I would like to dress up like Kipper from The Magic Key series.

Kipper is a young boy with black eyes, fair skin, and blonde straight hair. He sports a red and white striped t-shirt with blue jeans and white trainers. He always has got his prized possession, his signature teddy bear that is held in his hands.

In my old school, my English teachers encouraged me to read world record-themed books. Little shoutout to:

Andy McKenna and Lin Goffin from the post 16 days.

Shane Paul [My old support staff] and my Spanish teacher Corrine Eagle, who read to us about Don Quixote which is a novel by Miguel de Cervantes.
